reproduced and offered for sale to the public through Party publications. At that, it was seldom seen then and practically never since then.

For the remainder, they never were duplicated and, as such, truly ran the risk of becoming "lost".

Regarding the final segment – that from New England – it was required of me to trim a lot of excess "leader" film and splice two reels together… that was once I had viewed them and figured out that they belonged together.

For the rest, I filled out utilizing pertinent stills, my own narration, old fashioned title cards, music and sound
